

Cultural Capital Audit

	Details	Impact
Personal Development Curriculum	Careers Lessons Prejudice and Discrimination LGBTQAI+ Community People who shaped the world Events that shaped the world	Careers lessons give students the desire to aspire and achieve and will allow them to look at different career opportunities available to them, colleges, and university. It will be emphasised that these need not be limited by their starting points. Lessons will look at employability skills and how to develop these. Students will look at prejudice and discrimination regarding religion and why these are issues. This will enhance their cultural capital as it promotes equality and allows students to be well informed citizens on how to treat others fairly. Students will look at homophobia around the world and why it is not okay and will teach students how to be supportive of the LGBTQAI+ community. This will promote equality. Scientists, or activists, have made a lasting impact on the world and have contributed to the cultural and intellectual heritage of society. By learning about these individuals and their achievements, individuals can gain a deeper understanding of the world and its history, as well as the cultural and intellectual movements that have shaped it. Additionally, learning about people who shaped the world can provide inspiration and motivation, as well as help to develop critical thinking skills. Understanding the challenges and triumphs of these individuals can provide a model for personal growth and development, and can also provide insight into the larger cultural and societal forces that have shaped the world. Events that shaped the world, such as wars, revolutions, and scientific breakthroughs, have had a lasting impact on the world and have helped to shape the cultural and intellectual heritage of society. By learning about these events, individuals can gain a deeper understanding of the world and its history, as well as the cultural and intellectual movements that have shaped it.

Cultural Capital Audit

		Additionally, learning about events that shaped the world can provide context for current events and can help to develop critical thinking skills. Understanding the causes and effects of these events can provide insight into the larger cultural and societal forces that have shaped the world and can also help to develop a sense of historical perspective.
Academic Curriculum	Incorporating multicultural education into the curriculum: Teaching students about the history, traditions, and contributions of different cultural groups. For example studying ethnic minority authors. Careers lesson at the end of every L4L theme. Offering language classes.	Incorporating multicultural education into the curriculum can enhance cultural capital by promoting greater cultural understanding, appreciation, and awareness. By exposing students to a diverse range of perspectives, cultures, and traditions, multicultural education can help to build cultural literacy and foster a sense of empathy and respect for others. Additionally, multicultural education can also help to develop critical thinking skills and encourage students to think beyond their own experiences and perspectives. By engaging with different cultures and traditions, students can gain a deeper understanding of the world and its history, as well as the cultural and societal forces that shape it. Furthermore, multicultural education can also help to address issues of cultural bias and discrimination, and can provide opportunities for students to learn about their own cultural heritage and identity. This can help to foster a sense of pride and self-esteem, and can also help to build a more inclusive and respectful learning environment. Careers lessons give students the desire to aspire and achieve and will allow them to look at different career opportunities available to them, colleges, and university. It will be emphasised that these need not be limited by their starting points. Lessons will look at employability skills and how to develop these. Learning a language can enhance cultural capital by increasing our understanding and appreciation of different cultures and traditions. By learning a new language, individuals can gain access to different forms of communication, literature, music, and art, as well as to different ways of thinking and seeing the world.
Encouraging participation in cultural events and activities	Christmas fayre, school drama productions, music concerts	By participating in cultural events and activities, individuals can broaden their exposure to different cultures and traditions and can gain a deeper understanding and appreciation of the world and its

Cultural Capital Audit

		heritage. Additionally, participation in cultural events and activities can provide opportunities to develop important skills, such as communication, critical thinking, and collaboration. It can also help to foster a sense of community and can provide opportunities for social interaction and networking.
Immersive Room	An immersive room is a type of experience that uses a combination of technology, such as virtual reality, augmented reality, and sensory inputs, to create a highly engaging and interactive environment. These rooms are designed to immerse the participant in a particular cultural experience, whether it be a historical event, a work of art, or a scientific phenomenon.	By visiting an immersive room, individuals can gain exposure to a variety of cultural experiences that they may not have access to otherwise. This can broaden their understanding and appreciation of different cultures, traditions, and heritage, and can enhance their cultural literacy. Additionally, immersive rooms can also provide opportunities to learn in a fun and engaging way, which can increase motivation and interest in a particular topic or subject. This can be especially useful for individuals who are looking to build their cultural capital, as it provides a unique and memorable learning experience that can be both enjoyable and educational.
Music lessons	Free music lessons offered to PP students and non-pp can pay for music lessons. Music lesson offered to year groups 7-9 as part of the curriculum also.	Music lessons can have a significant impact on cultural capital. Music is a powerful form of artistic expression that has played a role in cultural traditions and heritage across the world. By taking music lessons, individuals can gain exposure to different musical styles, techniques, and traditions, which can broaden their understanding and appreciation of music. Additionally, music lessons can help to develop important skills such as discipline, critical thinking, and creativity, which can have a positive impact on personal and professional development. For example, the process of learning to play an instrument or sing can also help to develop strong memory and motor skills, as well as improve focus and concentration. Furthermore, participation in musical performance can provide opportunities for social interaction and collaboration, which can help to build connections with others and foster a sense of community.
Extracurricular clubs	Wide range of clubs at lunch and after school on offer e.g. Art club, film club, and Engineering club etc.	Extracurricular clubs can enhance cultural capital by providing opportunities for individuals to engage with different forms of artistic expression, cultural events, and intellectual pursuits. Extracurricular clubs can also provide opportunities to develop important skills and abilities, such as communication, leadership, and

Cultural Capital Audit

		teamwork. It can also help to foster a sense of community and can provide opportunities for social interaction and networking. Extracurricular clubs can also provide opportunities for individuals to develop their cultural capital in a particular area of interest. For example, if an individual is interested in music, they can join a choir or music club, which can provide opportunities to learn about different musical styles and cultures, as well as to develop their own musical abilities. By focusing on a specific area of interest, individuals can gain a deeper knowledge and expertise in that area, which can help to build their cultural capital and enrich their personal and professional life.
Trips	Various trips on offer to different year groups to places such as: art galleries, theatres, places of worship, castles, Universities, Colleges, space centre, geographical places of interest etc.	Trips to the theatre expose individuals to various forms of artistic expression, such as plays, musicals, and operas, and broadens their knowledge and appreciation of different cultural traditions and heritage. Attending theatre performances also helps to develop critical thinking skills as it encourages reflection and analysis of the themes and messages presented. Additionally, it can provide social benefits, such as creating opportunities for discussion and exchange of ideas with others and building connections with individuals who share similar interests in the arts. Frequent attendance at theatre performances can contribute to the accumulation of cultural capital, which can enhance one's cultural literacy and overall understanding of the world. Going on trips to universities can have a significant impact on cultural capital. Universities are centres of knowledge and learning, where students can gain exposure to a diverse range of ideas and perspectives, as well as engage in intellectual discourse and research. Visiting universities can also provide opportunities to attend lectures, seminars, and workshops on various topics, which can broaden one's understanding of the world and contribute to their cultural literacy. Going on trips to places of worship can have a significant impact on cultural capital. Places of worship are often rich in cultural and historical significance, as they represent important traditions, beliefs, and values within a community. Visiting places of worship can provide an opportunity to learn about different religious and cultural practices, as well as their history and cultural significance. Additionally, visiting places of worship can provide exposure to different forms of art and architecture, such as stained glass windows, sculptures, and

Cultural Capital Audit

		paintings, which can broaden one's appreciation of the arts. This can also help to increase one's cultural capital, as it enhances their understanding of the role of religion and spirituality in shaping cultural traditions and heritage.
Assemblies	Various assemblies for all year groups throughout year groups on topics such as: Black History month, European Day of Languages, World Science Day, World Religion Day, World Discrimination Day and World Poetry Day etc.	For example, an assembly provides opportunities to learn about and celebrate the contributions and achievements of Black individuals throughout history. By highlighting the contributions of Black people in areas such as art, literature, science, politics, and more, Black History Month helps to increase visibility and recognition of Black culture, history, and heritage. Additionally, Black History Month can also provide opportunities to learn about the challenges and struggles faced by Black communities, and to gain a deeper understanding of the impact of slavery, segregation, and discrimination. This can help to foster a sense of empathy and understanding and can also help to build a more inclusive and culturally aware society. Furthermore, Black History Month can also provide opportunities for individuals to celebrate their own cultural heritage and identity, and to connect with others who share similar experiences and cultural backgrounds. This can help to foster a sense of pride and self-esteem and can also help to build stronger communities and cultural networks.